What personal data we collect and why we do it

Comments

When visitors leave comments on the web, we collect the data shown in the comment form, as well as the visitor's IP address and the browser's user agent chain to help detect spam.

An anonymous string created from your email address (also called hash) can be provided to the Gravatar service to see if you are using it. The Gravatar service privacy policy is available here: <https://automattic.com/privacy/>. After the approval of your comment, the image of your profile is visible to the public in the context of your comment.

Media

If you upload images to the web, you should avoid uploading images with location data (GPS EXIF) included. Web visitors can download and extract any location data from web images.

Cookies

If you leave a comment on our site you can choose to save your name, email address, and website in cookies. This is for your convenience, so you don't have to fill in your data again when you leave another comment. These cookies will last one year.

If you have an account and connect to this site, we will install a temporary cookie to determine if your browser accepts cookies. This cookie does not contain personal data and is deleted when the browser is closed.

When you access, we will also install several cookies to save your access information and your screen display options. Access cookies last two days, and screen-options cookies last one year. If you select "Remember Me", your access will last for two weeks. If you leave your account, access cookies will be deleted.

If you edit or publish an article, an additional cookie will be saved in your browser. This cookie does not include personal data and simply indicates the ID of the article you just edited. It expires after 1 day.

Embedded content from other websites

Articles on this site may include embedded content (for example, videos, images, articles, etc.). The embedded content of other websites behaves in exactly the same way as if the visitor had visited the other website.

These websites may collect data about you, use cookies, embed additional third-party tracking, and monitor your interaction with that embedded content, including tracking your interaction with the embedded content if you have an account and are connected to that website.

With whom we share your data

How long we keep your data

If you leave a comment, the comment and its metadata are retained indefinitely. This is so that we can recognize and approve successive comments automatically, instead of keeping them in a moderation queue.

From the users who register on our website (if any), we also store the personal information they provide in their user profile. All users can view, edit, or delete their personal information at any time (except they cannot change their username). Web administrators can also view and edit this information.

The rights you have over your data

If you have an account or have left comments on this website, you can request to receive an export file of the personal data we have about you, including any information you have provided. You can also request that we delete any personal information we have about you. This does not include any data that we are required to keep for administrative, legal, or security purposes.

Where we send your data

Visitor comments may be reviewed by an automatic spam detection service.
